MASSACHUSETTS.

On Tuesday Boston dedicated a Soldiers and Sailors' monument for which the verbal ingenuity of Harvard College was taxed to furnish an inscription delicately avoiding any direct commemoration of the fact that those whom it is intended to honor, or laid down their lives in crushing a wicked rebellion, and the public exercises were pervaded by that tone of apology for the fact of which seemed inspired by a sort of apprehension lest Southern merchants in crossing the Common might take offense at such a memorial to 'Lincoln's hirelings' as Jeff Thompson or some other Clarke. If some of the victims of Andersonville and Libby could have heard the talk at the Commonwealth Banquet as the great captives of patriotism and the righteousness of a cause were bob nobbed out of sight as the convivial glass went around perhaps they might have thought of other days when other sentiments were popular in the Old Bay State. They might have wondered that a Governor of Massachusetts found it appropriate on such an occasion to declare war a curse and hero worship exhibited by every well bred man. They might have looked toward the ornamented marble and asked in the language of Webster "What is all this worth?" when a part of the sturdy observances of a Confederate officer was brought forward to interpret the meaning of the demonstration to be a tribute to the memories of the gallant and patriotic dead who in either side laid down their lives at what they regarded the call of duty and to present a toast at the dedication of a monument to loyal soldiers "Our Mutual Dead." But without the toast in explanation to put upon such a subject we may say it was Boston's funeral and those who paid the bills probably felt authorized to arrange the programme in their own way. None of us look to a contemporaries to thank us those backhanded questions is not to be answered. Would you condemn civil strife because we all worship in advance with a simple creed sufficient? But because the war is over Principles are not dead and loyalty as effectively fights and rebellion and treason as unequivocally Wrong, as when those Boston men went forth to meet death on the one, only Right side of a great contest.

On Wednesday Massachusetts Republicans held a State Convention at Worcester. The Worcester feeling the nervousness incident to a change of front in face of the enemy uttered a preliminary fear that the great Party of Principle might refuse to stultify itself at the behest of an Administration. The Journal, better informed as to the laying of the pipes announced in advance that the platform would be all that the most enthusiastic friend of the President can desire. If any doubting Thomas how that paper could know, were in mind him of a peculiarity of Massachusetts politics. The Committee on Resolutions which is usually appointed by the Convention itself, is not elected by the delegates but by the friends nearest the Chairman of the State Central Committee. By the turning off from that Committee of a number of old fashioned Republicans who had held office and filling their places with gentlemen duly impressed with the power of a National Administration the committee became thoroughly reliable for the present emergency. So when the Committee on Resolutions was elected by the Central Committee the Herald was enabled to say that it was remarkable for the unanimity of sentiment considering the policy. The event shows that the predictions were not erroneous. If their lack of expression in words ought however to call the attention of the moneymaking and politick of directors to the resolutions including up by the redundancy laws will of the civil service in congruity is released.

While the Massachusetts Republicans have laid their Convention and that they have pleased the Administration to be inferred from the fact that a telegraphic from the President who opposed interference with politics was circulated among the delegates designating Governor Rice as the White House choice and ask an endorsement of the policy. The election is now in order and as the issue appears to be a controversy as to which party is most closely allied with the new Administration policy it would seem that the Democrats who can present an older title to the doctrines on which it is based may decline to give up their familiar platform of the past decade to the Republicans without a sharp struggle. How much was done at Worcester on Wednesday to inspire and arouse the old time enthusiasm of earnest Massachusetts Republicans the future will determine.

SOUTHERN DESIGNS

[From the Mt. Pleasant (Iowa) Journal.]

When Mr Stubbs delivered his speech here Aug 23d he ridiculed the warning given by some of the Republican statesmen respecting the designs of the fire eating class of Southern politicians to demand payment for the loss of slaves in the event of the return of the Democratic party to national power. Now, while we do not believe that such designs could be carried nor receive favor with the better class of Southern statesmen, yet it is a fact, and we know it to be a fact, that there are men and leaders in the South who advocate such designs, as the following from a recent issue of the Methodist Advocate of Atlanta Georgia shows. It says

> Look at the relative strength of the infamous Radical party and the Democratic party now and several years ago! Our power to control this government again is fast approaching, and, as sure as there is a just God, the power will come, and every one of you will get your pro rata for your slaves, or your slaves themselves, or we will once more submit the question of our rights to the arbitrament of the sword."

The Atlanta Constitution thus relates an instance where the civil service reform policy and the new Southern policy have been brought into collision, when the former was compelled to yield

> The Postmaster-General recently settled a very heated controversy over the Postmastership at Water Valley, Miss., by the appointment of W. H. Brister, who is alleged by his opponent to be a "Bourbon" Democrat. The place is worth $1500 per annum, and the contestants were Brister and a colored man named Booth, who was the Deputy Postmaster. Brister's petition was originally gotten up and addressed to Tilden, and the heading was changed after Hayes was inaugurated. Booth's petition was signed by a hundred more than Brister's, and half of them are said to be Democrats. This is another case which the parties interested in declare they intend to make a fight on when the nominations come before the Senate for action.

THE STATE ELECTION.

We print elsewhere the official returns as given in the Kennebec Journal from all but 14 small towns and plantations that last year gave Connor 235, Talbot 218. As the Journal does not give the Talbot and other scattering votes in detail we have been obliged to merge our former returns thereof in the aggregates which it gives, to preserve uniformity.

The total vote is	101,451
For Connor	58,660
" Williams	41,835
" Munjon	6,188
" scattering	768
Connor's majority over Williams	11,830
"	5,879

The Press despatch giving this summary was erroneously printed, the word "excepting," being used when it should have read that the aggregate vote is the largest in any year excepting a Presidential election since 1860. The Journal, in correcting this error says "The aggregate vote this year is larger than in 1861, 1865, 1869, and 1873—all the "off" years immediately following Presidential elections, since the Republican party come into power, and the Republican plurality compares well with any of the years being larger than in 1869 or 1873. In the latter year the aggregate vote was but 76,000 and in 1869 [illegible]

SLOT GUN PACIFICATION

[From the New York Times]

The Mississippi plan is now being used to silence the prominent Democrats who oppose Republican supremacy. For the voters from its own ranks the Shotgun Democracy has only the same weapons as which it wrests Republican majority over the party of freedom and equality. Of course this must come to an end when all the voters kept from the polls by the same instrumentalities which charge them away from listening to its candidates. Southern reconciliation will be secure when the fact only with the ballot of the negro can be summoned by the bullets of his "Independent" friends, if not by his own. That consummation might be more rapidly obtained by the division of the colored vote, but the political prospect for the negro are, unfortunately, not the character to encourage the remarks of our highly practical friends. [illegible]

OPINIONS DIFFER

The Chicago Journal, Sept 10

Wm Hamp on in his address last week at the Winnebago County (Ill.) Agricultural Fair, at Rockford, Ill., counseled peace, moderation, equal rights and fraternal relations between all sections of the Union; declared that the conquest of the South in the settlement of the Presidential controversy, which many Northern men preferred war to deprecate, was in the declaration of President Hayes, and her course in the late riots demonstrated her desire for peace, and concluded as follows

> If Hampton and the controlling elements of the South will accept and act in good faith on the above declarations, all good citizens will rejoice.

[From the Portland Press, Sept 20]

GEN. WADE HAMPTON could not make a speech in the North without reasserting the old and, as we thought, dead doctrine of State rights. In his address at Rockford, Ill., on Thursday last, he said, alluding to his part in the slave holders' rebellion, "I did what you did. I stood by my State as you did by yours." This was an insult to the patriotism of the people of Illinois and to the thousands of veteran soldiers of the Union who heard it. The people of Illinois did not "stand by their State." they stood by their country. The difference between the two "standings" is very great; it is all the difference between disintegration and nationality. We thought the Democratic party had abandoned its state-rights follies but it seems not. Gen Hampton is one of its chosen leaders, and from his utterance we presume the resolutions of '98 are still a fundamental part of the Democratic faith.

THE BOSTON MONUMENT.

The following is a description of the costly and elegant Soldiers' and Sailors' Monument dedicated in Boston on Tuesday

> The base of the monument is octagonal, thirty-eight feet square, and the structure rises to the height of sixty-nine feet and nine inches. The three steps at the base have a trend of two feet and fifteen inches rise, and from these starts the base of the monument four feet two inches, with the projecting pedestal, four feet square. On the latter rest the statue, representing Army, Navy, History and Peace. The above section of the monument is four feet ten inches high, and between the projecting pedestals are the panels, four in number. Upon these are represented in bronze bas-reliefs, the departure for, and return from the war, a finely wrought naval engagement, and a scene from the work of the Sanitary Commission. Upon these panels are entwined delicately cut wreaths, which form a most harmonious adjunct to the whole effect. The die or main pedestal is fourteen feet, on the four sides of which are inserted panels. Upon the southerly side is cut in deep sunken letters, the following inscription: "To the memory of those who died for their country, in the field and on the sea, in their war which kept the Union whole and maintained the Constitution. Life gracefully has built this monument that their example may speak to coming generations."

The base of the column rests on the die four feet two inches high, which is of the Roman Doric order. Around the base of the shaft, which is seven feet six inches in diameter, are four figures cut in alto-relief representing the great sections of our country North, South, East and West. Above this section, which is eight feet, six inches high, arises the first sculptured wreath, above which is the fluted portion of the column. The wreath is five feet in diameter, and rises above the figures some seven feet. Another band, a plain section of the shaft, six feet five inches, a wreath band, a plain section six feet ten inches, and a finely executed band, upon which are cut the emblematic stars follow. The capital of the column is one of the most striking features of the whole design, and the idea is strictly original and very unique. It is seven feet square and just above has sculptured in the whitest of marble four eagles with spread pinions. Upon the topmost stone, which is three feet and eleven inches thick, and five feet in diameter, stands an immense figure the crowning work of the whole representing the Genius of America.

THE AROOSTOOK VOTE. The Houlton Times says: The vote in this county is so close as to require an official count to determine the exact result. The Democrats put in extra work among the French men who had bought dirt cheap thus overcoming the Republican majority this side of the Aroostook river. The Republicans elected five of the seven Representatives to the Legislature viz: Benj J Smith of Hodgdon, Eben Woodbury of Houlton, James Nowland of Ashland, Chas W Porter of Caribou and Elisha L Parkhurst of Mapleton. The Democrats elected William Dickey of Fort Kent, and John B Farrell of Van Buren.

The address of the President eliciting good the election attention of the delegates and spectators The most salient points were received with plaudits which at times rose to enthusiasm especially when he quoted his review of the action of the Electoral Commission and his challenge to the Democratic party to join issue upon the principles which the Commission applied to the vote of each State and upon the question of fact connected with the President's election The predication which was received from the Secretary of the Treasury as to the date of the resumption of specie payments was received with demonstrations of endorsement Issues were then all risen to the prosperity of the South and West, the special need of Massachusetts and the denunciation of the demand for silver as a unlimited legal tender But the first really spontaneous outburst of applause came in response to the order cut of the President and his so-called Southern policy He was significant as foretelling something of the spirit of the Convention

The Platform

The committee on resolutions reported the following resolutions

Resolved, That we reaffirm, first of all, our unwavering allegiance to the fundamental truth and principles which have inspired the triumph of the Republican party We accept the responsibility of National administration again committed to Republican hands as a trust to be exercised for the welfare of all the people without distinction of race color, locality, or creed The armed struggle for the Union and equal rights is at an end, the grand results attained are accepted facts in the National History Watchfully guarding and firmly maintaining all that has been achieved, we do not propose to abandon the helm or drift with the tide, but to address ourselves with vigor and courage to pending issues and to insist on their settlement in the interest of good government, national progress, and enduring Union.

Resolved, That we congratulate the country upon the rightful accession of a Republican President whose conspicuous integrity, honesty of purpose, wisdom, moderation and firmness, deserve and command the confidence of the people and give assurance of a pure, economical and beneficent administration of public affairs.

Resolved, That we hail with pleasure every sign of promise of the final and permanent pacification of the Southern section of our country and, under local self-government based upon the full recognition of the equal rights of all, by all, we cordially approve the spirit and measures of the Administration as wisely adopted to hasten this result as dictated by a just sense of constitutional right and duty, as tending to promote a spirit of peace and conciliation between the citizens of all sections, and as already largely justified by the bettered feeling and condition of the country.

Resolved, That the faith of the country is solemnly pledged to the speedy resumption of specie payments, public honor and private interests, alike demand the full amount of this pledge. We approve the steps already taken and rejoice at the progress already made, we insist upon the adoption of all measures necessary to insure resumption on a day not later than that now fixed by law, and this is the duty of this Government to maintain its gold and currency at all times at par with the gold standard of the commercial world

Resolved, That the work of reforming and improving the civil service, which the Republican party has undertaken and to which it alone stands committed, ought to be persistently, and resolutely carried forward We fully endorse the utterance of the Cincinnati platform and of the letter of acceptance of President Hayes on this subject, that nomination to office ought to be made upon the sole responsibility of the Executive without dictation or control of members of Congress, that honesty, capacity and fidelity, combined with the only essential qualification for office, that partisan service should not be expected, or desired from public officers who should give their whole service to the government and the people and that the term of office should be fixed by an unalterable prescription and that the satisfactory performance of such official duties can not politically change We cordially sustain and approve the policy and action of the President in conducting his administration in fulfillment of his distinct pledge upon these principles, recognizing that the work of correcting the abuses that have crept into the service is only begun that much remains to be accomplished in Massachusetts as well as elsewhere In order to show convincingly that the principle of civil service reform is not a mere party cry but a living principle and not a temporary method of administration We call upon all departments of the Government to give the President the cordial and effective support in the thorough radical and complete

Resolved That the order recently promulgated by the President for the purpose of regulating the levying of political contributions by persons in the public service of the Government from increasing the burdens and lowering the standard of political morality in the management of political affairs is in accordance with the principle and practice established by the founder of the Government We heartily endorse the order as the first and most important step toward a practical reform of the civil service, and we assure the President of our cordial support in the enforcement

Resolved That the Congress of the United States is already passed a reasonable limit in grants of land and money awards to private enterprises, that the interests of the Nation demand that no more grants shall be made other from the public domain or public treasury as subsidies to private corporations, and that appropriations for Government works shall be set forth be limited by the strict rule of necessity

Resolved That in view of the temptations to fraud and the corruptions notorious to prevail in large cities a strict registration of legally qualified voters is an essential condition of fair and pure elections We hold it to be self-evident that opposition to just registration laws is an indication of a desire to make opportunities for illegal voting if not of a purpose to encourage it We approve the registration law now in the statute book and believe the guards against election frauds should be strengthened and not weakened

Resolved, That the laws regulating the assessment of taxes in this State need revision and reformation in order that the burdens of supporting the government may be more justly distributed and more easily born

Resolved That we are proud of the record of the Republican party as a liberal and progressive party, always hospitable to advanced ideas, welcoming to its ranks all sincere advocates of measures for the advancement of society, affording free scope for the advocacy of every plan of improvement not only in Massachusetts but everywhere in the Union The great evidence of temperance, suffrage, reform labor reform and education have won their principal triumphs in and by means of the Republican party The party will remain true to this honored record and will cordially support all legislation which reason and experience show to be wisely adapted to prevent the evil and not the blessings and to promote the temperance, intelligence prosperity and rights of the people of the common wealth of every class and degree

The reel imitation of Mr Rice was received as he entered the Convention and declared

FRANCE

MacMahon's Manifesto

PARIS Sept 19 MacMahon's manifesto to the French people says For the last four years he has maintained peace and the personal confidence with which he is honored by foreign sovereigns, enables him to render France's relations with all powers cordial. He points out how France has prospered and says that the Disputes in throwing off the leadership of the moderate men at length, forgot the share of authority belonging to him and which he could not allow diminished without involving the honor of his name before the people of France and before history In the exercise of his right he dissolved the Chamber. His Government will designate among the candidates those who are authorized to make use of his name Elections favorable to his policy will facilitate the regular conduct of existing Government Hostile elections would aggravate the conflict between the public powers as well as impede the course of business and maintain agitation

In the midst of these fresh complications it would become for Europe an object of distrust. As for himself his duty would increase with the danger He could not obey the mandates of demagogues He could neither become an instrument of radicalism, nor abandon the post in which the constitution placed him. He shall remain to defend conservative interests with the support of the Senate, and shall energetically protect faithful public servants who at a difficult moment have not allowed themselves to be intimidated by vain threats. He awaits with full confidence the manifestation of the people's sentiments With God's help they will secure to France stability, order and peace. He asks the people to listen to a soldier who is guided by nothing but love of country

THE LATE HENRY BUTLER Mr Editor —The announcement of Mr. Butler's death at the age of 95 years calls to mind the two following remarkable facts as related by himself to the writer His race has been a very long lived one, so that he recollected seeing his great-grandparent in his early childhood He lived to see his own great grand-child, thus by his one life spanning seven generations. The other fact alluded to was that he had never since arriving at the age of 21 years omitted to vote for President, and had never failed to vote for the successful candidate. His age indicates that he this voted for Jefferson's re-election! The remark was made before the last election, when he voted for Mr Hayes. Fortunately for his consistency the Electoral Commission confirmed his choice as legal. P.

MARY ANN'S MIND

BY ROSE TERRY COOK

He overtook her soon with his long strides and Mary Ann was glad enough to have his company. With a certain native tact Jake forbore to intrude his passion on her notice till the basket was filled with fragrant berries and they sat down for a noon rest on a fallen tree. Neither of the two consciously admired nature but neither ever felt more at calm than during every period spent before them—the grey lichen-spotted rocks, the blue sea, the still blue heaven, the distant and incessant murmur of white waves lapping the shore, the dull green and scarlet border with tawny sand and far away the light-house tower and the sailing ships that drifted to or from the world of which these stole into their senses and kept them silent for a while. But Jake's mind was not formed to retain impressions without giving out of its riches in return, and Mary Ann's sex was not framed to endure silence somewhat longer than that.

"Mary Ann," said he, "I suppose you have been quite a spell that I like you in fact, ever since the trouble of last election, but I know folks has no right to use words unless they mean 'em, and I don't want to tell you what I feel unless you know what it is."

Mary Ann looked up to the girls and then down at her feet, but more in doubt than shame. She had not known her own heart's depth till Jake spoke, and had begun to think that he was not in earnest. Will you repeat it, Jake?

"Well—I like you. I like you better than anything in the world. I like you better than my own right hand. I like you better than my own life. I like you better than all the rest of the girls put together. I like you better than all the world and the fullness thereof. There, I've said it, and I don't take back a word of it. Now, Mary Ann, what do you say?"
